Texas Concern Looking Over Hope Plant Site

Possibility of a $300,000 grain curing and feed plant along with storage facilities located in Hope was revealed today. A Chamber of Commerce official said the project would develop one way or another possibility within 10 days.

A Texas concern proposes to build the curing and feed plant and install some 14 grain storage tanks. A representative of the firm spent several days in Hope last week going over possible sites and talking with grain farmers throughout the county.

Such a project would provide a ready market for all grains produced in the county and neighboring counties. It would not only provide storage facilities but would enable the producer to dispose of his grain at home. It would also give him considerable more time in which to harvest.

At the present time many grains, especially soybeans, have to be taken to other cities for processing. This proves expensive and cuts the margin of profit. With processing facilities close at hand growers could easily increase production.

A 10-acre plot on the east end of the Hope industrial site, near the city limits east on Highway 67, met with approval of the company representative and is available at any time.

In connection with the curing and feed plant the firm proposes to erect 14 tanks capable of storing 12,000 bushels each. He indicated the operation would start on a small scale, employing from 10 to 12 men regularly with extra help during harvest season and expand as necessary.

Hempstead Agricultural and Chamber of Commerce representatives as well as local businessmen are assisting the firm representative.

State Counts 15 Deaths by Violence

By The Associated Press

Arkansas counted 15 deaths by violence during the week that ended Sunday midnight.

Traffic accidents accounted for eight deaths.

A 9-year-old North Little Rock boy, Leroy Wilson, son of Mrs. Mattie Mae Wilson, was killed early Sunday in an accident 16 miles south of Little Rock on Highway 167.

State Patrolman Floyd Weaver said Mrs. Wilson Leroy and three of her other children were riding in an automobile driven by Nathan W. Robinson, 38, of North Little Rock. Weaver said Robinson lost control on a curve and the car turned over once and smashed against some trees. Leroy was injured fatally. His mother and the other three Wilson children — Patsy Sue, 8; Georgia Faye, 6; and 7-month-old Anna Lucille — were not seriously injured.

Other traffic fatalities included one death near Hot Springs, one near Barton, one near Fayetteville, one near Swifton, one near Osceola and two near Heber Springs.

There were two deaths by fire during the week, two fatal shootings, one suicide and two drownings.

Believes Men Would Live as Long as Women If They Talked as Much as the Females Do

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "Would American men, if they talked as much as American women, also live as long, too?"

Dr. Ira M. Altshuler, a Detroit psychiatrist, at least sees this as a possibility.

He has theory that the big silent male, by keeping his trap shut to much, bottles up his latent hostilities and vexations all day long to hear him tell it.

At the end of a day spent alternately in making decisions and taking sleighs she'd return home as full of eager energy as his wife. He'd be glad to take her out more often for a night on the town.

But I must find fault with Dr. Altshuler's odd conclusion that housewives enjoy "on a long day of leisure."

Nation Heads to New Record Of Deaths.

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council says the nation may be headed for a new all-time record of traffic deaths in a single year.

The March death toll was the highest in history. If the present trend continues, the council observed, the 1941 all-time record of 39,009 deaths may be surpassed in 1956.

The March toll was 2,960—320 more than March 1955 and 94 higher than the previous record of 2,866 for the month, set in 1937.

It was the 13th consecutive month of increased traffic deaths. The toll for the first three months of 1956 was 8,590, second highest first-quarter total on record. The record first quarter total of 8,615 deaths was set in 1937.

The mounting rate of traffic deaths prompted Council President Ned H. Dearborn to declare a "traffic accident emergency." He wired each state governor to urge an "all-out effort" to curtail traffic accidents.

John Greene Seeks Ward 2 Alderman Post

John S. Greene today authorized the Star to announce his candidacy for Alderman of Ward 2. Mr. Greene has been a resident of Hempstead County all of his life and has lived in Hope for the last 33 years. In making his announcement Mr. Greene made the following statement:

"After much thought and after receiving the encouragement of many interested people I have decided to make the race for alderman. I would very much like to see each of you personally and discuss the things that I stand for but unfortunately this will not be possible. However, will I make an effort to contact you but if I do not, please accept this as a personal invitation to consider my candidacy.

"In making this race I have but one promise and that is to serve to the best of my ability, the people of the City of Hope.

In voting upon matters affecting city government I will take into consideration that which will be the best for all and will not be guided solely by the thinking of anyone person or group."

President Warns Against Slash in Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower sent word to Congress today that any substantial cuts in his $4,900,000,000 foreign aid program at this time "would greatly endanger the security of the United States."

Eisenhower's views were relayed to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by Secretary of State Dulles following a White House conference.

In an all-out defense of the program which has undergone repeated attacks on Capitol Hill, Dulles testified:

"To have this program appreciably reduced, interfered with, or put into jeopardy would gravely endanger the security of the United States. That is the considered judgment of the President and all his advisers who are charged with safeguarding our national security."

Dulles said that judgment was expressed in the President's message of March 19 and "has not been altered."

"The President told me that this morning," Dulles said.

In advance of Dulles' appearance before the committee Sen. George (D-Ga.) said he favors expansion of the international political activity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but does not believe it should enter the economic field.

Dulles reiterated that the administration supports a restudy of the overall foreign economic and military aid program, as called for by George, who heads the committee.

"But none of these questions relates to the basic validity of the program itself," Dulles argued.

"It would indeed be ironic if, now that the Soviet has begun giving aid the United States program withdraw from that program which it invented and let the Soviet take over that field."

"It is true that Soviet policies, and doctrine now seem to put less emphasis on violence, and that is encouraging," he testified. "The danger of general war seems somewhat less, and that is an immense relief."

Dulles, who takes off tomorrow for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Paris, testified against a background of threats to the Eisenhower program for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Chairman Richards (D-SC) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said he favors marking time on the program on the possibility the administration in may offer drastic changes. And George has announced his opposition to American aid for building Egypt's big Aswan Dam project, one of the proposals involved in the administration's long-range foreign aid program.

Home Clubs to Observe National Week

The Eleventh Annual National Home Demonstration Week will be observed this year by 5,764,000 homemakers who take part in home demonstration club work throughout the nation. "Today's Homes Build Tomorrow's World" is the theme.

Home demonstration work is an educational program planned by homemakers and conducted cooperatively by the Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, the land-grant colleges and county governments. Through the program families learn to apply the latest approved methods developed by home economics research.

The general aim is to strengthen home and family life by helping women become more efficient homemakers and more effective citizens in their community, state and nation.

As part of Hempstead County HD Council's celebration of National Home Demonstration Week April 29-May 5, a home improvement tour will be held on Wednesday, May 2, for all HDC members and other interested people.

Leaving from the Hempstead County Courthouse at 8:30 a. m. the group will go to McCaskill by way of Ozan and visit in the following homes: Bert Scott Jr., Clold Blittick, Loy Rogers, Gordon Prescott, Herman Rhodes, Ott Warren and J. S. Moses.

The McCaskill HDC members will serve lunch for the group in the Community Center at noon (for 75c per plate).

Following lunch the group will return to Hope and visit in the C. J. Rowe and William Schooley homes on Route 3, Hope.

Chancellor's Ruling Is Affirmed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today agreed with Garland Chancery Court that Nat F. Jewell and his wife of Hot Springs owe General Air Conditioning Corp., $3,091.

The Jewells are partners in the installation of air conditioning and refrigeration equipment. They appealed a decision in General Air Conditioning's favor from Garland Chancery Court.

In 1953 the Jewells and General Air Conditioning entered a written agreement settling the accounts between them. Those accounts stemmed from joint projects.

The Jewells paid General $521.21, the difference between the two accounts.

Later, however, the annual audit of General's books revealed a $3,000 error. General demanded payment of the $3,000 and also $91 which it described as an error in favor of the Jewells.

The Supreme Court said Mr. and Mrs. Jewell testified they had no knowledge of the $3,000 error until June 1954.

"Even if the settlement . . . constituted an accord and satisfaction," said the Supreme Court, "the authorities generally seem to hold that it may be rescinded if it was executed through a mutual mistake of material facts."

Court Denies Sunday Sale for Grocer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Pine Bluff grocer's contention that he should be permitted to remain open on Sundays because other retail outlets are not closed was denied today by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court held that it "does not necessarily follow that because the druggist sells a bar of soap on Sunday the grocer has a constitutional right to do the same."

A Jefferson Circuit Court jury fined Berlon S. Taylor $25 for each of the seven Sundays which he was charged with keeping his grocery store open.

Taylor contended that the police discriminated against grocers by permitting drug stores, hotels, filling stations, restaurants, funeral homes, bakeries, tourist courts, bus stations and other businesses to remain open on Sunday. Many of them, he said, sell the same commodities as a grocery store.

Jefferson Circuit Court was correct in rejecting this argument by Taylor, said the Supreme Court opinion written by Associate Justice George Rose Smith.

The Supreme Court said grocery stores could close on Sunday "without apparent detriment to the public welfare."

On the other hand, it said, the Legislature "might reasonably believe that it is necessary and desirable to allow pharmacists to fill prescriptions on Sunday. It might also find that druggists are unwilling to open their stores for that limited activity alone and that medicines can be made available to the public on Sunday only by permitting all departments of the drug stores to remain open."

Associate Justice Sam Robinson dissented. He contended that Taylor had been denied equal protection of the laws in violation of the 14th amendment to the U. S. constitution.

The Legislature did not specifically mention grocery stores when it ordered business houses to close on Sundays, Robinson said, "and for the administrative officers of the state to take it upon themselves to inflict such discrimination is clearly contrary to the plain provisions" of the 14th amendment.

Church Destroyed By Fire Sunday

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — Fire swept through the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church yesterday, causing damage estimated at half a million dollars.

Deputy Fire Chief William Laroche estimated it would cost twice that amount to replace the church.

The fire broke out shortly after the 8 a. m. Mass started. There were 300 people in the church.

They left the church in orderly fashion when smoke was spotted in a room off the altar.

Khrushchev Makes Bold Overture Toward U.S. for Better Cooperation

Aimed at Direct Talk With Ike on World Problems

BY STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev today the United States is moving in the direction of cooperation with the Soviet Union.

His speech was broadcast and televised throughout the Soviet Union from Moscow's central military airport, where Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin had just landed on their return from a 10-day tour of Britain.

Both Bulganin and Khrushchev praised British hospitality and the results of their negotiations with Prime Minister Eden. But they had scathing words of denunciation for the Labor party, the British Socialist movement, which they accused of following "a reactionary anti-Soviet policy."

The bold overture to the United States, indicated Bulganin and Khrushchev aim at developing direct negotiations with President Eisenhower on world problems.

This was foreshadowed by a Pravda editorial yesterday, and has long been common knowledge in the Moscow diplomatic colony.

It was a strange forum, Khrushchev took to make the overture in Washington—a scarlet draped podium at the airport where only talk of Britain had been expected.

One of the most attentive listeners was U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen, who stood with his left arm in a sling, the result of a skiing accident.

"It seems to us," said Khrushchev, "that the U.S.A. is already beginning to show desirable signs of moving on the road of cooperation. An example was the speech President Eisenhower made to American editors. We cannot agree with many things he said, because they did not help good relations."

But for most of what Eisenhower said, including the President's expressed desire for good relations, Khrushchev had only praise. Eisenhower had said a Soviet government genuinely devoted to the legitimate interests of the Russian nation "can have friendly relations with the United States and the free world for the skin."

"We hope these words will be strengthened by practical steps," Khrushchev said, peering near-sightedly at his text through steel-rimmed spectacles. "With good will, much can be done to improve relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A."

"Little by little we can re-establish confidence. 'Eventually we may reach agreement on disarmament and have normal trade and cultural relations with the U.S.A.'"

Khrushchev's remarks about the United States were greeted with stormy applause by the crowd.

Problem to Write Play With Message

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (U)—The problem of writing an effective play dealing with social protest or "message" has always been a difficult one. On the stage, in the movies and now on television, the danger is that the characters will sound less like individual human beings and more like records playing, back long speeches forcibly engraved on them by an angry author.

Characterization, story and spontaneous momentum too often get lost in the writer's sense of righteous indignation. You have the feeling, not of real people caught in a real situation, but of puppets being mechanically arranged to illustrate an essay.

Even at the moment, the opportunity to express anger against a social situation, CBS, the sponsor and the Theater Guild as the producers rate some applause in bringing us Rod Serling's latest effort, "Night on Dimsday." But all hands seemed, in the opinion of this viewer, to have overlooked one basic ingredient; Serling forgot to write a credible play and, instead, provided only a tract.

For all the artistry he showed in writing "Patteran," "The Rack" and other TV plays, he displayed little craftsmanship in his most recent work. His story is that of a small town bound by a common prejudice never clearly defined which rallies around an obvious bully and drunk and sees to it that he is acquitted of the murder of a helpless one man-a stranger.

Watching "Night on Dimsday," one got the feeling that Serling never said what he intended to say—that somewhere between the birth of the idea and the final production, much was lost, much was compromised.

His choice of setting—a small New England town—seems curious. His failure to define clearly and explain the town's prejudice also suggests that Serling's basic idea was severely blunted before it reached the air. Perhaps it was inevitable in a mass medium depending on the sale of products, but nonetheless, the story had to be judged by what it hope do do, not by the limits of its stage.

Fraser still was in church when word reached him that the water had demolished his home. Jim Linder, a member of the Helena School Board, said he saw the twister strike the school gym. He said that he saw a funnel-shaped cloud that "looked like a giant swarm of birds."

Cecil Scaife of Radio Station KFFA, Helena, who was driving near Barton when the twister struck, said that it ran roughly parallel to State Highway 20 for about two miles and cut a path 50 to 100 yards wide.

Scaife said that the tornado moved within 10 to 50 feet of the ground most of the distance. He said that the trunks of giant oak trees were snapped 10 to 30 feet above the ground.

Fred Staub, the operator of a grocery store, said he watched the twister wreck the front entrance of the Farm Implement Company across the highway from his store.

It rained as much as an inch and a half in some sections of Arkansas with thunderstorms reported at numerous points.

Two and one-half hours before the twister hit Barton, a funnel was sighted high in the air near Stuttgart, which is 45 miles west of Barton.

Pine Bluff Man Seeks Post of Chief Justice

PINE BLUFF, ARK. — Chancellor Judge Carleton Harris, of Pine Bluff, today announced that he is seeking the Democratic nomination for Chief Justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court.

Now 46 years of age, he is serving his second term as chancellor of the fourth district (Jefferson, Arkansas, Cleveland and Lincoln counties). He is a former legislater, assistant prosecuting attorney and prosecuting attorney.

Judge Harris attracted statewide attention late in 1951 when he instituted a compulsory 30-day "waiting" period in all divorce suits filed in his court in which the couple had lived together during the year preceding when suit was filed. He had observed that a large number of couples who had been divorced were asking that decrees be set aside so they could resume marital relationship. He felt that since the Arkansas laws at that time made it possible for a couple to "fuss at breakfast" and be divorced before nightfall, that a 30-day "cooling off period" would save many marriages.

At the end of the first year, in Jefferson county alone, there were 100 less divorce decrees than the year before, and three times as many divorce cases were dismissed than during the previous year.

The rule proved to be of such value that the Judge Harris plan was enacted into a state law through a bill introduced by Jefferson County Representative Lawrence Dawson and passed by the 1953 legislature.

Judge Harris has a high record of affirmances by the Arkansas Supreme Court. In 1954, in affirming a case from his court, the Supreme Court adopted in full a 10-page opinion written by Judge Harris and made it a part of its opinion.

Judge Harris served three terms as representative from Jefferson county. At the time he assumed office, he was the youngest member of the house. In 1937 he served as chairman of the House Judiciary Committee composed of all the lawyers in the house.

He was assistant prosecuting attorney of the 11th judicial district from 1935 until 1947, except for two years with the Marine Corps during World War II, and then served as prosecuting attorney before assuming his duties as chancellor judge.

He is immediate past president of the State Judicial Council composed of all circuit, chancery and supreme court judges in Arkansas, and is a past president of the Jefferson County Bar Association.

He is a member of the Southside Baptist church in Pine Bluff and teacher of a men's Sunday School class. He is currently a member of the Board of Trustees of Ouachita Baptist College; a member of the board of the Arkansas Society for Crippled Children; third vice-president of the Central States Shrine Association, composed of Shriners from seven states numbering about 100,000, and is a member of the National Committee of Education of the American Legion.

He is past potentate of Sahara Shrine Temple; past grand orator of the grand lodge of Arkansas, F. and A. Masons; Past president and a member of the board of the Pine Bluff Lions Club, and a past president of the Pine Bluff Knife and Fork Club.

He was one of the organizers and prepared the charter for the Pine Bluff Boys' Club, and has served on the following other boards: Quapaw Area Council, Boy Scouts, Pine Bluff Public Library, and Pine Bluff Community Chest. He has served as disaster relief chairman for the American Red Cross and as vice-president of the Pine Bluff Men of the Churches.

Judge Harris is married to the former Marjorie Wilson of Pine Bluff. They have one son, Eugene (Kayo) Harris, now a Naval R. O. T. C. Junior in college.

and other top officials. Is the highest and most important policy-making body in the government.

Recently, as a result of Hoover Commission recommendations, Eisenhower appointed a committee of distinguished citizens to look into CIA operations, but only per-iodically, and report to him.

He planned to leave Egypt later today for his last discussions with officials in Israel, winding up his mission. He's due to report back by May 4 to the U. N. Security Council in New York.

A well-informed source in Cairo said Egypt now was willing to accept Hammarskjold's proposal that Egyptian and Israeli forces on the demarcation line be pulled back out of sight of each other. The exact distance would be determined by terrain and local circumstances.

Egypt was previously reported to be insisting that troops withdraw 500 meters—757 yards—on each side of the line. Nasser proposed this last fall.

An Israeli spokesman said Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett had complained to Hammarskjold of "acts of renewed Egyptian aggression."

An Israeli army source said the mine that blew up yesterday had been laid recently well inside Israel.

3 Reported Dead in Middle East Fighting

JERUSALEM (U)—Israel said today its casualties from weekend incidents on the Egyptian-Israeli border mounted to three dead and one wounded.

Egypt and Israel, parties to a 12-day old cease-fire agreement, each blamed the other for the flareup.

The accusations came as U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold neared the end of his peace mission to the Middle East, begun April 6. He held a final meeting in Cairo this morning with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi.

An official Israeli announcement said a second soldier died today as a result of a mine explosion under a military vehicle. The first was killed yesterday at the time of the explosion near Israhk village close to the frontier of Egypt's Gaza Strip. Israel also reported a farmer was killed in another incident yesterday.

Sources in Cairo close to Hammarskjold expressed belief the disturbances would not affect the outcome of his mission.

His conference with Fawzi today followed a talk last night with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Nixon to Be Chief Target of Democrats

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (U)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon will be the target of the Democrats' sharpest campaign barbs this fall. He will be denounced in language Democrats have seldom risked against President Eisenhower.

A tip-off to the harsh words Democrats will turn on Nixon can be found in a series of caustic remarks made about him by Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler. The latest came yesterday on a nationwide television program (Meet The Press, NBC).

Butler charged that Nixon's behavior in political campaigns "means and debauches" the American system of politics.

The American people have a sense of espionage and a sense of which does not fit in with the campaign conduct of Mr. Nixon," Butler said. He charged that Nixon has pictured Democrats as subversives ever since his first election to the House in 1946.

Butler used the same line of attack in a Saturday speech at Abingdon, Va. He said Nixon's decision to seek reelection means a "return to the smile and smear campaigns of 1952 and 1954."

Butler sounded the general theme the Democrats will take against Nixon in commenting earlier last week on Nixon's announcement that he would like to be renominated by the GOP. Butler said that Nixon is "not the type of person to be placed in a position from which he may succeed to the presidency."

Adlai Stevenson and his rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), campaigned today at opposite ends of the country. Stevenson sought votes in Oregon for that state's May 18 primary while Kefauver did the same in Florida for the May 29 primary.

Kefauver commented in Washington yesterday that he "confidently expects" to win the Democratic nomination because of his "gathering strength" for the important Florida and California primaries coming up "along with strength we are showing in the East and Middle West." Kefauver formerly had classified himself as an underdog to Stevenson.

In his television statements yesterday, Butler rejected suggestions that the Democratic party has been badly split by the civil rights issue, and said he has found "more unity and understanding" within the party than at any time in the past 25 to 30 years.

He conceded that the racial question is the "greatest area of disagreement" among Democrats. But he denied the party was losing Negro voters and predicted the convention would write a platform plank satisfactory to elv rights advocates.

Court Upholds State Printing Contracts

LITTLE ROCK (U)—The secretary of state's handling of printing bids was upheld today by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

In an opinion with one dissenting opinion, the Supreme Court agreed with a decision handed down by the First Division of Pulaski Chancery Court.

The suit was filed by C. R. James, a North Little Rock stationery dealer, against the state auditor and the state treasurer in an effort to halt the awarding of about two million dollars in state printing contracts.

The Supreme Court agreed with the lower court that:

1. The secretary of state is correct in accepting bids that are sealed in the same envelope until opened by the proper authorities. "These safeguards" against tampering with the bids "are protected even though several are sealed in the same container," the Supreme Court said.

2. If the statute requiring "separately sealed proposals" had intended that all proposals be sealed in separate envelopes it would have said "separately sealed proposals."

3. "There is no proof" that any persons who wanted to attend the opening of the bids was "prohibited from doing so; on the contrary, there is in this record the testimony of several who did attend and observe the tabulation from time to time."

James contended that the secretary of state:

1. Erred in not advertising for separate sealed proposals.

2. Accepted the bids even though they were not submitted as separately sealed proposals.

3. Failed to open bids on several contracts sealed together at a public meeting at the time and place designated in the advertisement. They were "merely slit and the contents afterward removed and tabulated."

4. Kept the bids opened and unpublished over a period of five days, two of them holidays, thus violating the secrecy of the proposals.

The Supreme Court agreed with Chancery Court that the law, through he phrase "after due consideration," permits the secretary of state to "take a reasonable time to determine the lowest responsible bidder."

"Certainly the statutes do not require the deliberation of bids to be conducted continuously until the final lowest responsible bidder has been ascertained," said the Supreme Court.

In a dissenting opinion, Associate Justice George Rose Smith said he believed the majority "approves a procedure far more lax than that which the lawmakers meant to sanction."

He added that the "procedure that is actually being followed is not that contemplated by the statute."

The slitting of the envelope "effectively destroys the secrecy of every bid," he said, and leaves the way "open for fraudulent manipulations in the interval that elapses before the bids are 'opened'."

He contended that the word "separate" in the law specified that "various sealed proposals must themselves be separate from one another."

In early America, maple sugar was the staple, cane sugar the delicacy, but the roles have now been reversed.

Get Rid Of This Boy

Dear Dorothy Dix: Surveying the usual Monday accumulation of laundry and housework, gardening that must be done, screens to paint and storm windows to take down, I suddenly realized how little my husband helps me. I have two youngsters to care for. I paint and plaster whenever the house requires it. If I spend money on myself, even for clothes I need, I'm told I'm extravagant. If my house isn't spic and span, my mother bawls me out. If the yard isn't tidy, my in-laws talk about me.

Do you think if I let my husband catch me with another man he'd get jealous enough to do his share of work? YVONNE
Dear Yvonne: When you find time to see another man — no matter how briefly — with your schedule? I'm afraid as a solution that's out.

What you need is the spirit of '76 — declare your independence. You worry too much over what other people say, think and do. You have your own personality to develop; don't try to conform to everyone's idea of what you should be.

Starch that backbone of yours instead of eternally bending it. nounce to all and sundry that you completely handle your share of work, but tasks which are primarily masculine, such as painting, plastering, storm windows, yard duty etc., will be left for your husband. If he neglects them, tough luck. They just won't get done. I doubt if your mother every plastered walls, or if your female in-laws do the outside chores.

I suspect you're a very young housewife; don't let inconsiderate people and their opinions wear you out before your time.

Dear Dorothy Dix: How can I lose 20 to 30 pounds by summer? I weigh 150, 5'7" and am only 14. I dread putting on a bathing suit.

Dear Kathy: Take yourself to a doctor for diet and exercise recommendations. I hope arithmetic is your strong subject for you'll be using it plenty to count calories. There just is no other way to lose. You're a tall girl, well proportioned, so a bathing suit needn't be something to avoid. Carry your height proudly; good posture will do a lot for you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Recently I met a very personable young man who dated me for a month, then admitted to having affairs with married women. He says he has a weakness for married women. Can I help him get over it?

be basically built of sterner stuff. But surely one reason for the superior longevity of woman is — aside from her greater commonsense in taking proper rest when she needs it — her superior curiosity. She is actually, intellectually more interested in exploring the endless and stimulating variety that life holds.

Interest is what keeps people alive. Men usually get bored with life easier than women do, and that certainly is partly why they let go of it sooner.

Men in later years have to find a hobby to keep from drying up — AND GIVING UP. But with women life itself is their favorite hobby.

March Plans to Make Only Movies Now

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — It's no more legit for Fredric March.

For 20 years or more, the actor has been bouncing back and forth between Hollywood movie sets and the Broadway stage, with girls absolutely irresistible.

The best thing you can do with this two-bit Casanova is dump him and find yourself an eligible beau.

notable success in each. But now he plans to limit himself to occasional movies.

Between rehearsals for tonight's "Producer's Showcase" version of "Dodsworth" on TV, he made this confession: "I'm 58. When you get as old as I am, you want to enjoy life. Mostly that means traveling to me."

"I couldn't face another long run in a Broadway show. We've had some pretty long runs in shows like 'Skin of our Teeth,' 'The American Way' and 'A Bell for Adano.' It was fun doing them, but I wouldn't want to stick in a show for a year or two again. That's for the kids, the ones with stardust in their eyes."

"Supposing I get in a show," he mused. "I get home around 4:30 in the afternoon, have dinner and then I have to go to the theater. If there's a party that night, I could meet my wife there. But by the time I arrive, the party's about over."

He made the same observation that I heard the late Walter Huston make in his later years: "If your play's a hit, you're stuck with it. If it's a flop, it's no fun."

So he's going to stick to movies and occasional — very occasional — TV. He is admittedly not too fond of working for the home screens.

"Maybe that's because I blew higher than a kite in my first effort," he laughed. "I was doing '20 Century' with Lilli Palmer. All at once I came to a place where I couldn't remember what to say next."

"Finally, Lilli fed me a line to get me out of it. When I saw the kinescope later, I died."

Methodists Seek More Ministers

MINNEAPOLIS (UP) — Hard pressed to keep its pulpits filled, the Methodist Church today readied plans for a sweeping expansion in facilities for turning out new ministers.

The proposal, scheduled to come before the church's law-making General Conference today, call for enlarging the seminary program to graduate 2,800 new pastors a year — up from a past peak of 927.

A church study commission recommends stepping up the capacity of the present 10 Methodist seminaries and establishing two new ones.

The two new seminaries, to accommodate 250 students each, would be established in the Ohio area, with no particular site indicated, and in the Kansas-Nebraska-Missouri region, with Kansas City the suggested site.

Announcement by Nixon Not Surprising

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—When a politician climbs the ladder to within the ring of the top, it's hardly time to jump off. So Vice President Nixon's announcement he wanted to run again was something less than a surprise.

What else would he want to do? He's not only a politician but an ambitious one, as his record shows. He made it in a big way in six years; first elected to Congress in 1946, to the Senate in 1950, to the vice presidency in 1952.

If Eisenhower should die before inauguration day next January, Nixon will be president. If the two men are elected and Eisenhower dies before January 1961, Nixon becomes president.

And if they both are elected and live out their term, Nixon will have a good chance for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960. It seemed only a matter of time before he said he'd like to be Eisenhower's running mate again.

The time element was interesting in itself. Eisenhower handled the question of Nixon's candidacy like a man sticking a thermometer under the nation's political tongue. No announcement was made until the temperature looked normal.

Nixon has a knack for making people either like him or despise him. Almost everyone seems to like Eisenhower.

The feeling about Nixon ranges from that of Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.) to that of former President Truman. When Millikin heard yesterday Nixon's hat was in the ring again, he said, "Good, good, good."

"Truman has been quoted as saying, although he denies using the word, 'I don't like the ————' and I don't care who knows it."

Democrats have been sore at Nixon for his campaign tactics in 1952 and 1954, his linking of "democrats" and "communists" in one sentence or paragraph.

There was the possibility Nixon was antagonized by Democrats, a lot of independents and perhaps some Republicans. It was something which Republican leaders may have thought about.

Although Nixon has been a hard-working vice president, Eisenhower, while praising him, worked his way forward almost gingerly to saying he wanted Nixon as a running mate again.

This gave Eisenhower time to see what was the sentiment about Nixon, although Republican party leaders have pretty largely endorsed him enthusiastically, and increasingly so as time went on.

Last Jan. 25, before Eisenhower himself said he would run again, he was asked at a news conference how he felt about having Nixon as the ticket with him again. Eisenhower praised his vice president.

"But he said, 'I never have talked to him under any circumstances as to what his future is to be, or what he wants to be.' It wasn't long before Republican leaders were saying what a fine running mate Nixon would be for Eisenhower."

On Feb. 29, when Eisenhower announced his second-term candidacy, he refused to say whether he wanted Nixon. Again he praised him. But he said it was "traditional that a vice president is not nominated" until after a presidential candidate is.

This was being extremely reticent, since Eisenhower knew his own simple statement he would run again was the same as being nominated. By the same token he knew the Republican convention would endorse anyone he wanted.

On March 7 Eisenhower said all he had asked Nixon to do was to "chart out his own course and tell me what he would like to do." By this time a number of Republican leaders had said Nixon was just the man for the No. 2 spot.

On March 13 Nixon won a heavy vote of confidence in the New Hampshire presidential primary by getting over 22,000 write-in votes for renomination as vice president.

The next day, March 14, Eisenhower said Nixon is like a brother to him and "I would be happy to be on any political ticket in which I was a candidate with him."

There wasn't much more said on the subject until Wednesday when Eisenhower said he still hadn't heard what Nixon wanted to do. Yesterday Nixon told everybody, and Eisenhower said he was "delighted."

Russians Lost Ground by British Visit

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

LONDON — The British-Soviet communiqué ending the 10-day Bulganin-Khrushchev visit is probably disappointing to everyone concerned. But the Russians had more disappointments than the British.

In terms of the modest results of the conference, the British can claim victory on several counts. The Russians lost a propaganda skirmish and the British gained at least a temporary breathing spell in the Middle East war of nerves.

Soviet Premier Bulganin and party boss Khrushchev admitted they were unnerved by the coolness of the British reception. That, coupled with the lack of hard achievement in the talks, explains the solemn mood of the two Russian visitors.

The joint statement, while it is loaded with the clichés of diplomacy, still indicates Moscow's leaders are worried that the world situation might deteriorate into something uncomfortably close to World War III.

The communiqué announces mutual pledges, in broad generalities, to work for lessening of tensions, prevention of nuclear war, halting of the arms race, lessening war increased trade and cultural contact in the Middle East and for tracts between East and West. No specific steps are mentioned.

Much depends now upon how much the Russians mean of what they say. They say they will do their best to end the arms race "U all parts of the world." Will the Russians still insist that sale of arms to the Arabs is strictly a business deal, or will they put on the brakes.

The British seem to think they will use brakes, at least for the moment. In any event the communiqué, coupled with the recent Soviet Foreign Office announcement that it was ready to cooperate for Middle East peace, will have the effect of cooling Arab zeal for war with Israel. The Arabs cannot be sure the flow of communist arms and where-withal for maintenance of the arms are guaranteed.

Middle East Arms Ban Okay by Russians

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Communist leader Nikita Khrushchev insisted today Moscow would welcome a ban on all shipments of arms to the explosive Middle East — provided other nations were similarly pledged.

And Premier Bulganin announced Prime Minister Eden has accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union. Bulganin also made it clear the Russians expected Britain to take the lead in improving Soviet relations with the United States.

Khrushchev and Bulganin spoke at a mass farewell news conference shortly before they started homeward after a 10-day round of conferences with Eden, and tour of Britain. They described themselves as well satisfied.

Two hours later the Communist boss and Soviet Premier boarded the Soviet Cruiser Ordzhonikidze in Portsmouth harbor and headed home.

The two leaders agreed to answer only written questions from the 500 newsmen crowding Central Hall, hard by the Houses of Parliament. Many of the questions were hostile in tone, and these Khrushchev took for himself.

Tired, but in obviously good humor, he deftly and jovially juggled words on Soviet intentions in the Middle East, the nuclear arms race, prospects for a top-level Soviet visit to the United States and prospects for British-Soviet trade.

His performance was watched by millions of Britons on television. Khrushchev declared that Russia does not ship arms to anyone.

"And we would like there to be no shipments at all," he said.

But, he added, "I think we would answer wrongly if we were to say that we would not sell arms to states which urge us to do and the reason for that is that shipments are being made by other countries."

"If it were possible to agree through the United Nations or otherwise that this would not take place," he said, "we would only welcome that, and we would be prepared to take part in such an

Around The World

KATMANDU, Nepal. — (UP) — Thousands of guests from throughout the world were pouring into this Himalayan capital today for the coronation next week of King Mahendra Bir Bikram Shah Dev. The king will ride a huge tusked elephant to the colorful ceremonies where he will be crowned, the first Nepalese king to be crowned in 43 years.

King Mahendra succeeds his late King Tribhuvan who was once forced to flee to India when the Rana family seized control in a palace revolution in 1950.

Thousands of workmen labored to transform this ancient Asiatic city into a showpiece for the coronation and painters were touching up religious sculptures which adorn most of the temples here.

LIVERPOOL, England. — (UP) — Dr. William Godfrey, Roman Catholic archbishop of Liverpool, spoke Sunday in favor of gambling "within reason."

He boosted the government's proposed savings bond "lottery" in contrast to Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Anglican archbishop of Canterbury.

"State lotteries are not morally objectionable or harmful, provided they are not too frequent and are prudently supervised by the government," Archbishop Godfrey said. "Otherwise, they would offend morally by excess, for they would excite in the citizen a passionate desire for gain."

ROME. — (UP) — Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, American Catholic radio and television speaker, arrived here yesterday by plane from Madrid. He said he planned to spend a week here and see Pope Pius XII.

PALMA DE MALLORCA. — (UP) — Prince Rainier and Princess Grace will have to wait another day to see the bullfight they traveled here to see Sunday.

The bullfight was scheduled for Sunday but authorities called it off because of early morning rain. They decided to hold it on May 1, a Spanish national holiday.

TAIPEI, Formosa. — (UP) — The Chinese Communist have built a huge naval base at the former French concession of Kwangchow-Wan near Hainan island, the Chinatone News agency said today.

The Nationalist agency said Soviet warships call regularly at the new base to refuel and to take on supplies.

TEHRAN, Iran. — (UP) — The United States presented two Lockheed Shooting Star jet training planes to Iran Sunday in a military ceremony at Tehran's Mehrabad airport.

The planes were the first to be received by the Iranian Air Force. They were flown from Furstendfeldbruck, Germany, where 15 Iranian Air Force officers received training earlier this year.

CAIRO, Egypt. — (UP) — Eight persons were killed and 8 injured in a collision between a narrow gauge train and a packed taxicab, reports from Tanta in the Nile Delta said today. The impact at a grade crossing toppled the train over the taxicab into an irrigation canal.

George Raps Building a Dam in Egypt

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today he opposes U.S. participation in financing of the proposed Aswan Dam in Egypt.

George is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and chief spokesman on foreign policy in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

He said in an interview he thinks it would be "very unwise to help one of the belligerents in an area of possible conflict while there is no guarantee of stable peace there," and he continued:

"I am against making commitments for the Aswan Dam. The situation is bad in the Middle East and I think it would be one of the worst things we could do now. I don't know how we could justify it all."

The United States has joined with Britain in offering Egypt 70 million dollars for a start on the 55-million-dollar U. S. portion of this offer is available in foreign aid funds due to revert to the Treasury unless committed before June 30.

Later financing would come largely from the World Bank, which has announced substantial agreement with Egypt. Talks are continuing, however, on some thorny side issues.

The Aswan Dam has become something of a bargaining point in Middle East negotiations since Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser indicated he still may consider Russian offers of aid to build the project.

Projected as the greatest single structure in the world, the dam would cost an estimated $1.5 billion.

undertaking which would help bring about peaceful conditions in the troubled areas of the world."

Khrushchev spoke in answer to a written question whether Russia would use her influence on "friendly governments" to slow the international arms race. The West contends that peace has been endangered in the Middle East by Communist Czechoslovakia's sale of arms to Egypt, which has upset the balance between the Arab world and Israel.

CHAPTER XIX

He opened the door. She climbed into the seat beside him. It was restful to lean back against soft cushions after that panic flight through the woods. A greater fear destroyed all conventional caution.

As they passed another street lamp, she stole a glance at his face. The chiaroscuro made a striking thing of his straight nose, square jaw and well-cut mouth. A strong face. A closed face that could keep secrets. Lucky he had happened to come along when —

A nightmare possibility stirred gooseflesh. Could this be the car whose headlights she had seen through the woods? Could this be the actual murderer of Cristina?

Surely no killer leaving the scene of his crime would give a lift to a witness, who could testify against him later? Not unless he were planning to eliminate that witness altogether.

Mercifully he didn't speak. He might be a murderer, but he was also a gentleman a person who doesn't ask questions.

"Please let me off at Orchard and Maple."

It was two blocks from the hospital. There were many homes along the way. He'd have no reason to think she was going to the hospital.

He leaned across her to unlatch the door. His smile was pleasant, but his glance was keen. He could not be a murderer. Not with a face like that.

"Thank you. Good night."

She slid out and heard the door slam behind her. The car pulled away. Hands in pockets, shoulders hunched, she started to walk toward the hospital.

The sidewalk beside the carriage drive curved up in a steep ramp to the great glass doors of the hospital. Stale air tainted with antiseptic greeted her in the big lobby. There were still lights and bustle here. Doctors and nurses, orderlies and a few anxious relatives of patients talking to the receptionist or pausing for a snack at the coffee shop that closed at two.

She drew a deep breath of relief as she slipped into the enclosed stairwell and shut the door behind her. One hand on the railing, she hauled herself from step to step.

She fought down the urge to race to her own door. She stepped into the corridor, carefully, on tiptoe, and shut the door quietly behind her.

She was halfway to her own door, when a mpan came from one of the rooms on the other side of the corridor. "Nurse —"

She heard a chair scrape in the sitting room around the corner as one of the nurses rose.

There was no time to get back to her own room, but there was another door just beside her. Silently, she pushed it open.

She was in a room as dark as her own when she left it. She could just see a lumpy form on the high hospital bed. She could just hear a faint sound of breathing. She waited, praying that this patient had been drugged, too.

Minutes dragged. At last she heard a nurse's voice. "You'll be all right now." A door closed.

No footsteps. The nurses were all rubber-shod. Alice counted to a hundred slowly. Then she was 300,000,000 and require from 10 to 15 years to construct.

George made it clear that domestic economic considerations play a large part in his opposition to American participation in the dam construction.

He said if the project were built and the waters of the Nile backed up for irrigation it might be possible that "millions of acres" of land would be planted in cotton.

"They could produce enough cotton there to fill up the world market and wipe out these markets for the American grower," he said.

George's home state of Georgia is a major cotton producer. The issue of finding wider markets for cotton has come up in his campaign for renomination to the Senate this year.

Groups Form to Combat Desegregation

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Two organizations which were formed to combat racial integration are expecting a large crowd tonight at a rally that could be a springboard for one or more Arkansas political candidates.

Delegations are expected from Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas, and Georgia.

One of the featured speakers will be Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia. The rally is backed by the Arkansas White Citizens Council and White America, Inc.

Ben T. Laney, former Arkansas governor, will be master of ceremonies. There have been reports that Laney planned to run against Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) in this summer's Democratic primaries.

Laney, Arkansas' governor from 1945 to 1949, joined the Dixiecrat movement in 1948. He has given no recent hints on his political plans.

So far, there has been no serious opposition to the candidacy of Gov. Orval Faubus for a second term. Faubus has filed for the Democratic nomination.

Tonight's rally will be staged less than 48 hours before the filing deadline for the Democratic primaries. James D. Johnson, White Citizens Council director, said last summer that segregationists would enter a candidate for governor in this year's elections. Johnson, a former state senator, said last week that he may be the gubernatorial candidate. Two years ago, Johnson made an unsuccessful effort to defeat Atty. Gen. Tom Gentry.

A Little Rock attorney, Amix Guthridge, is executive secretary of White America, Inc.

flushed down the toilet. At last she crawled into bed. She was safe — if her alibi held. Raincoat and shoes would be dry in the morning and her bag —

With blinding clarity she saw the bag lying on the table in Cristina's study. She was lost.

It was finished. So near success, so very near. . . . Heedless, absent-minded, impractical. . . . How could she have ruined everything with one little slip when she tried so hard.

At two o'clock the night nurse came in quietly on rubber-shod feet and reached for Alice's pulse. A moment later she was running down the corridor to the head nurse on duty. "Jonesy, better call Mrs. Hazard's doctor at once!"

"That's odd." The head nurse frowned as she dialed the doctor's home number. "Mrs. Hazard seemed so much better this evening. I wonder if anything could have upset her?"
